

Connecting Yale to the World

The Internationalization of Yale

Twenty-first century Yale strives to be a global university. Under the leadership of President Salovey, Yale seeks to attract students and faculty from around the world, share and adopt best practices from abroad, and exchange initiatives with leading educational institutions of other nations. The Association of Yale Alumni (AYA) complements these efforts through YaleGALE.

YaleGALE

The Yale Global Alumni Leadership Exchange (YaleGALE) is a strategic initiative of the Association of Yale Alumni (AYA) that seeks the advancement of higher education through alumni engagement and volunteer leadership. YaleGALE volunteers share best practices in alumni relations and foster rich cultural understanding with alumni from universities around the world. YaleGALE, through its engagement of leaders, shares with and strengthens volunteer driven organizations.

The Changing Role of Alumni

At Yale, as at many institutions of higher education in the United States, alumni volunteers play a significant part in the life of the institution. They recruit students, employ graduates, provide social and volunteer opportunities, promote the institution, and provide philanthropic support. In other countries and cultures, alumni have taken different paths to become involved with their universities, particularly regarding admissions, alumni relations, and fundraising. The AYA has much to learn from its counterparts abroad, and much to share.

What YaleGALE Does

YaleGALE partners with leading universities and fellow members of the International Alliance of Research Universities (IARU) to conduct alumni leadership exchanges around the world. Delegations of Yale alumni, who have served as volunteer leaders in AYA, travel with their families to host countries where they share ideas on alumni relations in conferences, seminars and workshops. They also visit significant cultural landmarks and institutions, and build lasting friendships between Yale alumni and alumni leaders of premiere global higher education institutions.

Most YaleGALE participants have been active for years in various AYA programs at the regional or national level. Many have been members of the AYA Board of Governors. For YaleGALE, participant volunteers create events, prepare presentations, write promotional materials, develop itineraries and maintain relationships with partner universities.

Why Yale Alumni Participate

Yale alumni participants volunteer their own time and pay their own way to participate in a YaleGALE exchange. They do it to give back, because Yale has given them so much – so much more than just an education. At Yale, they have learned, taken to heart, and enriched their lives with ideals of service to others. They have gained lifelong friends, and sometimes even spouses or partners. For these leaders Yale is family – and participating in a YaleGALE event deepens these family ties.
